“The Usual Suspects” portrays the tragicomic story of three fearless housewives who decide to kill their abusive husbands and become sucked into an electrifying battle with mafia and police. In an adventure full of surprise, tension and comic misfortune, they must stick together to stay one step ahead of their adversaries.

Fed up with the toxic behavior which they had to tolerate from their husbands for years, Feyza, Nehir and Zuhail hatch a devious scheme to get the ultimate revenge. Choosing the luxury hotel which the three wealthy men founded together as the setting for their perfect crime, the women set out on a chaotic escapade, full of darkly comic drama.

The men are summoned to a surprise party to celebrate the hotel’s anniversary and the women prepare to poison them with champagne. Unaware of what lies in store, the men are unhappy with the surprise and continue to treat them badly. This only doubles the women’s determination, but they soon learn that the best laid plans often go astray.

Zuhail’s jealous, wife-beating husband Mustafa and Nehir’s heavy gambling other half Onder both die as a result of the poisoning. However, Feyza’s cheating husband Akin clings on to life and is taken to an intensive care unit. The women’s plan has hit a major snag and their lives are set to become increasingly complicated.

The murder investigation is led by detective Gokhan and his assistant Zeynep. While Feyza, Zuhail and Nehir don’t immediately appear to be under suspicion, they start to feel the heat as the investigation deepens. At the same time Zuhail and the detective develop an emotional connection, making Zeynep both jealous and suspicious.

All the while, the three women are being pursued by the menacing Yalcin, right hand man of the mafia boss who had been conducting shady business with their husbands. When Akin is released from intensive care and flees hospital, the women find the police and Yalcin are watching their every step.

Just when they think things can’t get any worse, Akin dies accidentally when he gets into a fight with Feyza. The three women will now have to stick together more than ever if they are to dig their way out of their increasingly desperate predicament. Thanks to Feyza’s mishap, Nehir’s desperation for money and Zuhail’s cowardice, they are drawn into their husbands’ dark world and will have no choice other than cooperating with Yalcin.

When our three heroines enter the men’s world, laundering money and working with criminal gangs, the direction of their lives changes completely. They gradually become stronger women, with their feet planted firmly on the ground, but there is always the risk of a slip-up as they strive to outwit their rivals.
